Hoher Robertson Cannot Pay His Invalid Father's Expenses.

William Blake, Superintendent of the outdoor Poor in the Department of Public Charities, has sent a notice to Henry M. Robertson, who lives at the Buckingham Hotel, and is in the paper business at 319 Broadway, to call at his office. Mr. Blake wants him to explain, it is true, why he does not do his share towards the cure of his helpless father.

Supt. Blake's attention was called to the case by a letter from Col. Samuel B. Saul, an attorney for Heber R. Robertson, Jr., a younger son, who is manager of the Insurance Club, 52 Cedar street. Young Robertson says he is bearing the expense of his father's maintenance, and is a clergyman, who is infinitely richer than his father, before he bore any of the burden and a younger brother, Walter Robertson, has been obliged to work

"Henry is a successful and wealthy young man. He is said to be worth half million dollars. Had I seen him soon after, I should not have written the letter and I could have avoided all this bother. But all I said in the letter was that, according to Heber, Jr. I hoped to make arrangements with Henry for the Henry is thirty-two years of age. His education was fortunate in that a wealthy maternal uncle gave him the advantage of an education at Yale College, and he is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi association, of the Sons of the Revolution, and of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. He is a member of the New York Athletic and Reform Club, and of the Southern Society. His father is a junior partner in his father's firm, and in his father's office. Porter Col. Paul said that Henry desired Walter as joining either against him in this matter, and that Henry refused to ouster Walter from the partnership.

When seen to-day Henry was much excited, but contended himself with declaring that the whole statement of the letter was untrue.

"I have not even seen my father in year now, nor my brother Heber in months. Had I known the situation, I should have attended to it long ago.

Heber R. Robertson, jr., did not care to be quoted, further than to say that he had been a poor man for many years, and was a bookkeeper. He said that he was without a cent, and had been a faithful, indulgent father to his boys.

He then pursued the usual course in such cases, and said Supt. Black "if either of them is able, yet refuses to maintain his helpless father, I shall have no court to compel him to do so, and having him left with heavy bonds to his share. If he gets no bondsman will have to go to jail."

THE PROVISION MARKET.

Trailings in Wheat, Cotton, Corn and Coffee in This City.

The cotton market was active to-day. The first sales were made at a decline of about 3 points. Then the market rallied and during the forenoon all the loss was gained, the noon prices indicating an improvement of 6 to 8 points over yesterday's closing prices. At noon prices were: October, 1.57; November, 1.68; December, 1.70.

he estimated receipts at the port to be about 3,000 tons.

The local market opened a trifle lower than it had yesterday. September was at 67-8, and December 68-10.

Trading was moderate, and chiefly of a speculative character, holders of 12 cents switched their holdings to 11-1/2.

The wheat market was quiet and uninteresting.

The corn market was quiet, but some buyers say there is no danger of a frost for the time being. The price of No. 2 gives promise of being the price of the recent years, with the exception of 1900.

The coffee market opened from 5 to 10 points lower, but improved about 5 points standing at 15. Greenon, the moon brand, is at 15-1/2.

October, 15-5; November, 16-00; December, 16-5; January, 16-25; February, 16-00.

McKENNA SAYS SHE WAS FORCED TO GIVE UP HER TWO CHILDREN.

Judge McAdam, in the Superior Court, yesterday denied Mrs. Catharine McKenna's petition for alimony and counsel fees in suit for absolute divorce brought by her husband, Thomas J. McKenna, a non-keeper, of 35 Broome street. The statutory ground was alleged as the basis of the suit.

Mrs. McKenna makes counter charges of infidelity, and says that last April her husband came to her house, and at that point she was forced her to give her two children.

Not Properly Served.
 Lawyer William W. Dykeman, the newly appointed receiver for the Commercial Bank, of Brooklyn, appeared before Justice Bartlett in the Supreme Court to-day to qualify.
 Justice Bartlett refused to receive his oath, as notice had not been given to the Attorney-General.
